Statement of the Rev. Mr. Merrill, the Absconding New York Clergyman.

The Rev. Mr. Merrill, whose recent disappearance from Plattsburgh, New York, after being charged with most disreputable conduct in connection with a young lady in North Adams, Massachussetts, led many to suppose that he had committed suicide—a supposition strengthened by the fact that a portion of his clothes were found by the bank of the river in the vicinity of the town—has made his appearance in the West, and written a letter to the Troy Times, in which he relates his experience from the time he entered the ministry until the present. He says that ever since he commenced to preach, in 1848, he has been constantly in debt, and to this fact alone he charges all his troubles. He says:

In 1848 I left school at the request of several ministers, and went to Warren circuit to aid the preachers stationed upon that field. The circuit comprised six towns. I was a poor boy, but eighteen years old, had thin, poor clothes, and was over $100 in debt. A gentleman gave me a cast-off overcoat to keep me from suffering with the cold, and much for part of the year. I hoped to be able to save enough to pay my debts and get me some clothes that year. But the other two ministers had families dependent upon them for support, people most part were poor, and it took all they could give to take care of them; so I worked through the year and received but $4 and my board. At the close of the year I was sent to another circuit, where I was compelled to buy a horse and carriage. I had no money, and ran into debt for these, and also for clothes to wear. At the end of this year, I found that my income had been a trifle less than $100. Of course my debts remained unpaid. They began troubling me. I ought to have stopped preaching then and gone into some other business and paid my debts. But I was now engaged to be married, and my pride rose up against going and making an open acknowledgement that I must stop preaching and go to work to pay my debts. This was my first and mistake. But others said I had better continue to preach; I would get better pay in the future. So I hoped, and so I believed. I was married, and made the best show I could for housekeeping. At the conference of 1851 I was appointed to Washington Mountain, Mass. With my wife and one child I went to my post. There I found no house to live in and nothing to keep house with. There was no church, but an old store in which to preach. I went to work with a good heart, but troubled with my debts on every side. I sold my horse to help me live. At the end of the year I went to the Conference, and reported a new church finished and paid for. I had received $200 salary. At this Conference I was removed 250 miles, to the Canada line in Vermont. I had not one dollar to pay my expenses. I borrowed the money, took my sick wife with a babe about three weeks old in her weary arms, and far among strangers we made our sad way. Here, too, I found a field of five towns to travel over and no means to buy a horse. Then I ought to have stopped preaching. But no; a gentleman trusted me for a horse and carriage. Now I was in debt $600. My conscience told me I ought to go into some other business and pay my debts. But pride, and the ill-timed advice of friends, kept me back. This winter I was so thinly clad, and so exposed to the fearful cold of that mountain region, that my health gave way and sickness and expense followed. Two years after my eldest daughter was stricken down with hip-joint disease from which she has never recovered.—For days and nights we carried her in our arms. We left nothing undone which love could suggest or skill accomplish to gain relief, but all in vain. Now, I had not only debts overwhelming me with confusion, but a living death filling our hearts with the profoundest sorrow. Oh, the anguish of those days none can tell. Thus the days passed heavily on, and my burdens bowed me to the very dust. In 1861 I was appointed to the City of Albany. The gloom and horrors of civil war were now coming upon the nation. For one year I performed the work of my ministry as faithfully as I knew how, and at the same time devoted my energies and influence to aid the war committees in sustaining public meetings and securing volunteers for the army. In 1862 I went with my regiment, the 177th New York, to the field of contest. I stayed as long as I could, and did my duty as well as I knew how. I had left my wife with seven helpless children to care for, that I might do something for my country in her hour of trial and danger. This service so increased my financial embarrassment that it seemed to me I must sink and go distracted. At this time I made several attempts to get into business to relieve myself and pay my debts. Those who trusted me felt hard because I did not pay them. I walked my house or the open streets day after day, not knowing what to do. I preached as well as I could under such trials. I many times even contemplated suicide. But from this my whole moral nature recoiled with horror. When those whom I owed asked me for money, I would give them all I had and promise them more as soon as I could get it. I ought to have lain aside all pride, and appealed to a generous public to help me. But I thought my family would feel disgraced and look upon themselves as paupers. So I hoped for better days and suffered on. My conscience meanwhile began to grow more and more indifferent to duty. I sought temporary relief in travel and society. I sought the more joyous and worldly persons for company. In 1864 I was stationed at North Adams. Here I found a generous and good people. I tried to serve them faithfully and well; indeed, I worked beyond my strength. In a protracted meeting which I held there I was engaged one hundred and twenty-three nights in succession. My system became weak and over excited. My debts perfectly overwhelmed me at times. I sought the society of the young, and where the most freedom and gayety could be found there I visited most frequently. This gave occasion for talk. Some scandal soon started in connection with my name. But as God is true, I only sought this society in preference to the more sober to drown my troubles of mind. I was proud and willful, and would not listen to the counsel of friends. Up to this time my reputation as a minister had not materially suffered.—As the last year drew to a close, my reputation was suffering more than I was at the time aware of. I was indiscreet. I called at the house of the family with whom my name had been so sadly associated more frequently than I had ought to have done. I did not only myself an injury, but the family also. But Gods knows I did not intend to injure any one. Two or three of the family were members of the choir, and were excellent singers.—This served to furnish relief from the gloom and darkness which had settled down upon me. I always appeared cheerful. But it was always put on. I was miserable indeed. When on my way west, I met the lady whose name has been so unfortunately associated with my own in Troy, and accompanied her to Albany—a most careless and imprudent step. This gave occasion for that awful article that appeared in the Times, charging us with an elopement. When that article was published we were more than two hundred miles apart, and when the paper was handed to me and I read the article, the last ray of light seemed to be extinguished. I was on my home. Oh, God! my mind wandered and my brain was on fire. I tried to pray. I wept and walked the boat. I returned to Troy and secured a retraction in the papers. But whatever paper I took in my hands from distant parts of the country, my eyes were horrified with the most extravagant and false statements in relation to me.

And I here desire to say, that no part of the blame or censure belonging to me for imprudence or wrong-doing in this whole matter should be cast upon the young lady involved in this sad affair. I am older, and on my uncovered head let the blows of condemnation fall. I am to blame. Every fair-minded person will see that what I now say cannot be said to screen myself or in any way help my case, further than as truth will do it. But as God is my judge, and as I expect to give a strict account at His bar in the last great day, for all I speak and do, and as I hope to be accepted when all men shall stand silent before God, so far as any crime is concerned with me, or any other being on earth, as far as I know, that young lady is as pure as the stars that shine over her head by night, or the sun which lights her path by day.

He further says his troubles worried him so much he resolved to commit suicide, and actually made the attempt, but when in the water he thought of his wife and children, and he repented him of his design. He then fled to the West, where he wrote to his family. The letter closes with a piteous appeal for charitableness and forgiveness.

Gen. Grant and the Presidency.

The following are the resolutions adopted by the Union Republican Committee, of New York city, on Tuesday evening, nominating General Grant for the Presidency:

Whereas, the people in various portions of the land are induced, in ways not to be mistaken, their choice for the Chief Magistracy of the nation, and

Whereas, the popular leader named by the voice of his countrymen, is the illustrious General who caused the triumph in war of those principles which the Republican party seek to establish in peace; therefore,

Resolved, That representing the working members of our party in the city and State of New York, we are determined that in the ranks of those who stood together for their country's good in the dark days of the rebellion, there shall be, if we can secure them, united counsel, thorough organization, energetic action; and with this patriotic purpose we to-day, subject to the decision of the Republican National Convention, inscribe upon our Presidential canvass, the name of General Ulysses S. Grant.

Resolved, That we proudly unite in the universal tribute to the intrepid courage, the scientific skill, the persistent perseverance and the unfaltering fidelity by which the triumph of the Union and of Liberty were planned in the lurid light of the tent, and achieved on the bloody field of battle. Nor are we unmindful of the truth, that in the military genius which could surmount all obstacles in the late sanguinary struggle, is implied the possession of intellectual powers, which are the country's need in the midst of difficulties following the train of victorious war. At the same time, throughout his career at Washington, as a director and adviser in matters pertaining as well to civil as to military administration, we recognize qualities of wisdom and sagacity, of uprightness and inflexibility, of energy and moderation, peculiarly demanded by the highest trust which the people can bestow.

Resolved, That we hail with satisfaction the fact that the wise, moderate and patriotic action of Congress in their persistent efforts to protect from lawlessness and restore to representation the misguided States of the South, at the earliest period consistent with justice and safety, has received from the General of our armies the same countenance and support always extended by him to the principles and measures of the party which sustained him in carrying the war to a successful issue, "without compromise, qualification or condition."

Resolved, That in calling Grant to assume the civilian's robe, and heal the wounds of a long and dreadful war, our people will but emulate the wise example of the fathers who summoned Washington from the shades of Mount Vernon, until, under his fostering care seeds planted on the red fields of the Revolution had blossomed in the green gardens of peace. The wisdom of those fathers was followed by their descendants with results not less auspicious, when Jackson was placed in the Presidential office, and the desolations of the second war with Great Britain were followed by the fruits of enduring prosperity. And it is a truth the American people will not forget, that no President who had served his country well and wisely in the camp, ever disappointed those who, advancing to him the civic wreath, entrusted him with the highest office in the nation.

Treatment of Carlotta's Health.

From the Memorial Diplomatique, July 10

We receive afflicting news from Miramar. The Empress Carlotta, separated about a year from her husband, deprived during more than three months of all direct intelligence, and after having become a prey since the departure of the French troops to the keenest emotions and most poignant anxieties, has just fallen into a moral prostration of the most alarming character. Her Majesty no longer seems to have any consciousness of what is passing around her, and remains plunged in a gloomy reverie, from which Dr. Hick has not for a moment been able to rouse her, nor even when he announced the cruel event which wounds her so cruelly in her dearest affections. The complete indifference with which the unfortunate Princess received that redoubtable blow but too well justifies the fear that science will now be powerless to save that fine intellect.

As Dr. Hick had from the first made himself responsible for the cure of the Empress, Maximilian I, who had placed all his confidence in him, left him absolute master of the treatment to be followed. For that reason neither the Austrian family nor the Court of Brussels ventured to interfere in a matter so delicate. At the present time the Emperor of Mexico, having fallen under the murderous hands of the Juarists, the rights of th two families will naturally be substituted for the authority of the husband. With that object the queen of the Belgians has left Brussels to be present at the family council assembled at Salzburg, and thence her Majesty will proceed to Miramar. The medical men are of the opinion that a final experiment ought to be made by transporting the Princess Carlotta into the midst of her youthful reminiscences in the Palace of Laeken. That step will, in fact, be adopted as soon as an assurance can be entertained that this long journey can be accomplished without aggravating the state of the august invalid.

Our country exchanges all over Missouri inform us that the wheat crop is harvested, and much of it safely stacked or housed. The crop is every where represented as very good or unequaled in quantity or quality. As a consequence, the farmers are said to be jubilant.

A boy died a few days ago in Huntingdon, Pa., from eating cherries, or rather from swallowing the seeds.

A lot of Southern ex-rebels have bought 20,000 acres of land in Honduras at fifty cents per acre, and there is plenty there to be had at the same rate.

Two young girls, children of a Mrs. Southard, were burned to death in Kenton, Ohio, last week, in attempting to kindle a fire with coal oil. The mother was absent, and the house being troubled with musquitoes, the children attempted to start a smoke to drive them off.

Melancholy Case of Drowning.

An account of the sad accident which recently occurred at Marquette, (Mich.) is given as follows by the Detroit Tribune:

Our community was terribly shocked Thursday morning, 18th, by the news of the drowning of Mr. G. D. Maynard, a well known and highly esteemed citizen. It seems that on Wednesday evening a party of towns-people, with their visiting friends, to the number of some forty, went out in the tug Jay C. Morse for a moonlight ride. When rounding Partridge Island the boat struck a sunken rock and began to fill very fast. Two ladies, Mrs. Ely and Mrs. Mather, were thrown overboard by the sudden stoppage. Mr. Mather, Mr. Morse and Mr. Maynard immediately jumped into the water to rescue the ladies, which was accomplished. Mr. Maynard became separated some distance from the boat, and as he saw by the settling of the tug that the only safety for those on board was to make the nearest land at once, he called to the captain to leave him, that he was all right, having got hold of a plank. The bow of the boat was turned towards the nearest point and all steam applied, but though the shore was not distant more than half a mile, the fires were extinguished and the steam exhausted before the boat struck bottom. The headway, however, was sufficient to enable them to reach the beach, thus barely escaping the loss of a large number of lives. But where is Maynard? His call can be heard, but fainter and fainter. Parties are sent in search, but in vain! The plank is found upon the beach, but no Maynard! Poor fellow! gone—a martyr to a generous and heroic spirit—his last words, "Go on, I'm all right."

As a well dressed gentleman was passing through a New York park, a few days ago, he was accosted by a ragged urchin, who desired a light for a well chewed and burned "butt." The gentleman stopped, passing the cigar to the boy, who lighted his relic, and quietly handing the latter to the gentleman, made off with a good cigar.

A man by the name of Schlatter, while binding wheat in a field near Buchanan, Mich., last week, gathered up in a sheaf a rattlesnake, which bit him on the finger. With remarkable coolness he immediately took his pocket knife and cut open the end of the finger through the wound made by the snake's tooth, quickly wound a horsehair tight around the finger to prevent as much as possible the circulation of the blood, and drank a glass of liquor. The next day he was nearly well, having suffered but very little.

Circular to the Charitable and Appeal in Behalf of Distresses.

Dare et dabitur vobis.

TITUSVILLE, CRAWFORD CO., PA., May 15th, 1867.

The Rev. Napoleon Mignault, pastor of St. Titus' Church of this city, would respectfully submit the following brief statement, to the kind public, which should prompt a few thousands to do all in their power to come to the rescue, viz:

Some three years ago, when plenty, success and prosperity dwelled in and blessed these oil regions, a much needed church, presbytery and school house were, with the authorization of our Right Reverend Bishop, hastily built and completed. The heavy debt of twelve thousand ($12,000) dollars was incurred by it, hoping to soon liquidate it, as everything indicated a lasting prosperity. But to his great regret, hard times destroyed his plans and hopes. After much labor, and the incessant toil of two years, he finds himself entirely unable to pay off the heavy indebtedness. He has tried all available means at home—concerts, donations, collections, lectures, &c.,—taxed his parishioners to their utmost ability, surrendered, to a great extent, his own personal resources, failed after all in accomplishing his object, and is driven to the necessity of having resource to a grand gift concert and fair, at which over ten thousand ($10,000) dollars worth of prizes shall be distributed, some of the prizes being worth as much as $500. A list of some of the prizes can be seen on the back of the ticket. Please notice that only 15,000 tickets shall be issued at one dollar a ticket.

When all this is considered, the Rev. N. Mignault feels that this application to purchase tickets entitling to a gift at the fair will not be made in vain nor considered intrusive. Send one dollar to his address, which will entitle you to a ticket to the fair and to a prize. A partial list of prizes can be seen on the back of the ticket.

As to the matter of lotteries or anything of that character, the Rev. N. M. is as much opposed to them as any other Christian; for is no such scheme, or the ecclesiastical authorities would not have given their kind approbation, which may be seen below. Let prompt attention be given to the matter; let the money be forwarded to the Rev. NAP. MIGNAULT, Titusville, Postoffice drawer 1,365, in Postoffice orders, so that the Fair may take place about ninety days from date. Remember, only 15,000 tickets at one dollar each, entitling the holder to a free admittance and a prize, some of which are worth $500.

APPROBATION OF THE ADMINISTRATOR.—This is to certify, that Rev. Napoleon Mignault, pastor of St. Titus' church, Titusville, Pa., proposes to pay the heavy debts on his church and parsonage and convent by getting up a Grand Gift Concert and Fair; indeed, he must have recourse to some means of this kind, otherwise the generous Catholics of Titusville, who have already been overtaxed in consequence of the large improvements made, will not be able to pay off their debts. I approve of the said act that dictates the enterprise

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—I, the undersigned, Pastor of St. Titus' church, Titusville, Pa., do hereby certify that the proceeds of our Grand Fair and Gift Distribution, to take place in this city, shall be appropriated to the exclusive charitable object of liquidating the many debts of our church, parsonage and convent.—Fair to take place in about ninety days.
